RCMP confirm remains of two Canadian men found in Algeria

Finding a solution.
Canadians have responsibility to ensure 'radicalization' quickly nipped in the bud: RCMP Insp. Marc Richer

The remains of two former London, Ont., high school students were found in the wake of an Algerian gas-plant siege in January, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police confirmed Thursday during a news conference in Ottawa.

Authorities have identified Ali Medlej, a 2006 London high-school graduate, and Xristos Katsiroubas, who attended the same school as Medlej but didn't graduate, officials said. The announcement comes on the heels of media reports that the pair helped carry out a terrorist attack at the natural-gas plant.

RCMP Insp. Marc Richer would neither confirm nor deny reports that the men were part of the group, saying only that they were there. Thirty-eight hostages and 29 militants were killed in the four-day fight.

"We are continuing our work, gathering evidence endlessly, to determine the circumstances that led to Ali Medlej and Xristos Katsiroubas departing Canada," Richer said.

The Mounties are asking the public to contact them about "certain behaviour" that, even in hindsight, seemed out of the ordinary for Medlej and Katsiroubas.

"If people notice something that didn't fit over the course of time, before these events, that they believe might be useful, that's what we're looking for," Richer said.

People who knew Katsiroubas while he was in high school have said his demeanor changed suddenly around the time he's believed to have converted to Islam.

Project Beaconsfield. Organized-crime unit nabs 10 in cocaine bust following eight-month investigation

Ontario Provincial Police have arrested 10 people in an eight-month-long investigation into cocaine trafficking in Eastern Ontario.

Dubbed "Project Beaconsfield," the joint operation with the Organized Crime Enforcement Bureau, Brockville Police Service and the RCMP netted seven kilograms of cocaine, 29 pounds of marijuana, 18 grams of hashish, and more than $45,000 in cash. Several vehicles were also seized in the crackdown, with warrants issued in Clarence Creek, Bourget, Brockville, Manotick, Elizabethtown-Kitley and Gloucester.

According to police, the investigation was launched after a lengthy probe by the Ontario Racing Commission.

"The majority of the people that were picked up were charged with possession for the purpose of trafficking or trafficking itself," said Sgt. Kristine Rae of the OPP.

"They were the traffickers in those communities.... They were the ones selling and that kind of stuff."

Rae could not say if more arrests could be expected, only noting that the investigation remains open at this time.

Chief to decide fate of Police Services Act charge

Decision. Now that Sgt. Steven Desjourdy has been acquitted, Ottawa's top cop must decide on internal discipline, budgeting for the legal bills

JOE LOFARO
joe.lofaro@metronews.ca

Ottawa police Sgt. Steven Desjourdy walked away a free man Wednesday with a sexual-assault charge dismissed by a judge, but Friday he was expecting to learn if a Police Services Act charge relating to the fateful cell-block strip search would go forward.

The Ottawa Police Service laid a discreditable conduct charge against Desjourdy following a 2010 investigation by the Ontario Provincial Police.

Police Act proceedings were put on hold at the request of the Crown while the sergeant's criminal charge was brought to trial. The high-profile trial ended Wednesday with Justice Lipson finding Desjourdy not guilty of sexual assault.

The decision to proceed or withdraw the PSA charge rests with Police Chief Charles Bordeleau, who said Thursday he was still reviewing Lipson's 30-page ruling to see if it has any potential impact.

He welcomed Lipson's decision and said a not-guilty verdict doesn't necessarily make his decision any more or less difficult.

"If there was a guilty verdict, then the decision would be is there any additional charge that's laid," said Bordeleau. "Not guilty is a factor, but then we also look at the (judge's) comments."

Ottawa police also have another difficult decision ahead of them surrounding the cost of Desjourdy's hefty legal fees for the trial. Under the Ottawa Police Association's collective agreement, an indemnification clause exists to reimburse a member if he or she is acquitted of a criminal proceeding.

Sgt. Steve Desjourdy exits the Ottawa courthouse after being found not guilty of sexual assault relating to the strip search of a female prisoner in a police cell block. JOE LOFARO/METRO

The police force refused to disclose the amount when contacted by Metro Thursday.

"It's an unbudgeted item and then we will have to — if we're tasked with finding the money — we will have to find the money and find some efficiencies elsewhere in the budget to be able to deal with the cost," he said.

Network.
City surveys cyclists for winter biking routes

Those hardy souls who brave the bike commute during Ottawa's winter have a chance to tell the city ways to make their cold ride a little bit easier.

The city is looking at tying together sections of road and multi-use pathways already maintained in the winter to make a more complete network. Currently, the path along the Rideau Canal is the major north-south winter route, with the Laurier Avenue bike lanes providing east-west access.

"There are a lot of segments of multi-use pathways across the city that are being maintained, let's say primarily because they happen to be pedestrian access between different key locations," said Zlatko Krstulic, a planner who works on the cycling portfolio.

"So there's some of that everywhere in the city. But specifically what we're looking at in the cycling plan is which components of the network around the core ... that might be tied together."

To that end, the city is soliciting feedback from cyclists on what that network should look like. Krstulic said the city gets a lot of feedback along the lines of "You maintain the route up to here, but if you only extended it a few more metres, it would make it more useable."

Citizens for Safe Cycling is one of the groups engaged by the city. They've set up a map with a proposed route, with several east-west and north-south corridors, on their website at safecycling.ca.

A new way to park it

Bus service. Parkbus offers escape from Ottawa to camp in Algonquin Park

GRAHAM LANKTREE
graham.lanktree@metronews.ca

A successful bus service that brings Torontonians to Ontario parks is launching a pilot run to Algonquin Park in Ottawa this summer in hopes of staunching declining attendance at Canada's wilderness treasures.

"The traditional demographic of parks visitors, baby boomers, are going to parks less and less," said Boris Issaev, 27, who founded Parkbus with longtime friend Alex Berlyand in the summer of 2010. "If you live in Ottawa and don't have a car, you have no option to experience them."

Details

- On its inaugural run from Ottawa the bus will leave from the Mountain Equipment Co-op on Richmond Road. Visitors will have to make reservations for their campsite through Ontario's parks reservation system.
- Parkbus has three trips scheduled for the warmer months on June 21, Aug. 9 and Sept. 20. Each time the bus leaves on a Friday and returns that Sunday, giving visitors two nights in the park.

Since 2007, attendance at national parks across the country has fallen five per cent and is part of a greater downward trend, according to Parks Canada.

Drawing from his own experience as an immigrant to Canada at the age of 12, Issaev said that many new Canadians don't know the parks exist and that many young urbanites don't have cars and have no way of accessing the sites.

"We're surely combating the first two. Transportation and knowledge of the parks. We're trying to educate people about the use of the park," he said, noting that on each journey the bus has experienced wilderness buffs who come along for the ride and educate neophytes on how to pitch a tent, start a fire and the other ins and outs of roughing it.

"We want to be bringing new visitors to these parks," Issaev said, adding that it wasn't until he turned 18 and bought himself a car that he discovered what he was missing.

"We were a family that didn't get out of the city much. Now it's basically my favourite pastime," he said.

Release party. Horror anthology a real scream

Local horror writers will emerge from their lairs Friday and convene at the Avant-Garde bar on Besserer Street to share tales from the crypt compiled in the third edition of a fiction and art anthology.

Sean Moreland, a part-time University of Ottawa literature and horror-fiction professor, and Aalya Ahmad co-edited 17 stories in Postscripts to Darkness 3, which is now on sale.

The stories, which range anywhere from 500 to 3,500 words, are not your average slasher fare.

"We look for work that really pushes the envelope in terms of the uncanny, in terms of the weird, in terms of the horrific," said Moreland. "We look for work that's often very experimental."

Putting together another anthology is challenging, he said, but there is a market in Ottawa for horror writing.

"We've got a really strong indie horror writers community," he said.

Miles Tittle designed this illustration for the front cover of Postscripts to Darkness 3. CONTRIBUTED/MILES TITTLE

Authors in the book with ties to Ottawa include James K. Moran and Lucas Dawes. Nearly every story is accompanied by an illustration.

To mark the book's release, guests are invited to drop by Avant-Garde at 135 Besserer St. at 7 p.m. to listen to contributors read aloud excerpts and play a horror and weird-fiction trivia game. JOE LOFARO/METRO

Basketball. Meet the NBL's Ottawa SkyHawks

The name of Ottawa's professional basketball team was unveiled for a second time Thursday after the first one — the TomaHawks — was deemed offensive to aboriginals.

The team will now be called the Ottawa SkyHawks, announced Bytown Sports and Entertainment Inc. president Gus Takkale at Algonquin College.

He invited two First Nations members to the announcement who welcomed the name.

Bytown Sports dropped the TomaHawks name Feb. 27, the day after it was announced, following pressure from several people both within and outside the aboriginal community to change it.

"We believe this is a turning page for the owners and everyone else who really heard the message of the people," said Gilbert Whiteduck, chief of the Kitigan Zibi reserve near Maniwaki, Que. "We're hoping to bring out people to all the games."

The Ottawa team will join other franchises in the National Basketball League of Canada, which was started in May 2011.

The name SkyHawks was voted the overwhelming favourite in a Facebook poll Takkale's company organized.

He said a team and head coach have yet to be chosen. The search for sponsors will begin this summer, he said.

The season is slated to start in November. JOE LOFARO/METRO

Is making a wedding dress a craft?

David McCaffrey thinks so. The owner of McCaffrey Haute Couture, one of Ottawa's most visible bridal salons, will be heading this weekend to the Originals Spring Craft Sale at the Ottawa Convention Centre — an event usually better known for its artisanal Etsy work than fashion.

"This is the first time I've ever gone, even though I've been doing this for the past 16 years," says McCaffrey, who agrees when asked if many people tend to think more about the process of selecting a dress than about how or where it is made. "When they made the (craft sale) approach it's just such a good fit, because everything is based on handcrafted things that are made here in Ottawa."

Sure, he imports all of his silks, but he says everything else from measuring to the custom designs, sewing and fitting happens here.

He'll be showing his new Ethereal collection Saturday at noon and at 2 p.m., but he says it won't be a typical runway show — it will be more a presentation of how these products are actually made.

Creating a dress is very much a co-operative effort between clients and his firm, but he says he gets the same sort of satisfaction other artisans get.

"I very much consider myself a maker," he says.

"When a person and I get together and we create a design on paper and then take that to a final product, and when that person puts on that dress, it's amazing how much it does to bring her to life and how much that makes her feel absolutely amazing."

In addition to client contributions, McCaffrey says he gets a lot of inspiration from nature, citing one dress that came to him while spending time at a lake in the Gatineau Hills and seeing the reflection of the moon on the water.

Poll. Canadians have little faith that their private information is protected

A newly released poll suggests Canadians overwhelmingly believe their private information is more at risk today than it was a decade ago and that the federal government and corporations don't take the issue very seriously.

The poll commissioned by the office of the federal privacy commissioner found about 70 per cent of Canadians believed there's less privacy protection today than there was 10 years ago.

Very few felt personal information was being safeguarded as much as it could be. Only 21 per cent of those polled felt the federal government took its responsibility to protect private information seriously, about 64 per cent responded "somewhat seriously" and 12 per cent chose "not seriously."

For businesses, 13 per cent of respondents said corporations take the issue seriously, 68 per cent chose "somewhat seriously" and 18 per cent replied "not seriously."

Saskatchewaner dies in plane crash

A medical evacuation plane crashed early Thursday in the Bahamas, killing three people, including Tim Polowick, originally from Saskatchewan.

Authorities say the plane crashed as the pilot tried to make a night landing. The pilot was trying to land with the light of headlamps from two trucks driven up to the small runway.

The plane's wing hit one truck, spewed fuel and then spun into the second, which exploded, killing three people inside. The pilot survived. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Only death could silence prolific movie reviewer

Roger Ebert. Even after losing much of his jaw to cancer, critic kept his trademark wit coming Roger Ebert had the most-watched thumb in Hollywood.

With a twist of his wrist, the critic could influence a nation of moviegoers and sometimes make or break a film. He was best known as half of a TV duo with Gene Siskel and later with Richard Roeper.

Ebert, film critic for the Chicago Sun-Times since 1967, died Thursday at the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago, two days after announcing on his blog that he was undergoing treatment for a recurrence of cancer. He was 70.

"So on this day of reflection, I say again: thank you for going on this journey with me. I'll see you at the movies," he wrote Tuesday on his blog.

After cancer surgeries in 2006, Ebert lost portions of his jaw and the ability to speak, eat and drink. But he went back to writing full time and eventually even returned to TV. In addition to his work for the Sun-Times, he became a prolific user of social media, connecting with fans online.

In early 2011, Ebert launched a new show, Ebert Presents At the Movies. The show had new hosts and featured Ebert in his own segment, Roger's Office. He used a chin prosthesis and enlisted voice-over guests or his computer to read his reviews.

North Korea missile on the move

Nukes. North is not believed to have mastered technology to miniaturize nuclear bombs to mount on long-range missiles

After a series of escalating threats, North Korea has moved a missile with "considerable range" to its east coast, South Korea's defence minister said Thursday.

But he emphasized the missile was not capable of reaching the United States and there are no signs that the North is preparing for a full-scale conflict.

North Korea has been railing against U.S.-South Korean military exercises that began in March and are to continue until the end of this month.

The allies insist the exercises in South Korea are routine, but the North calls them rehearsals for an invasion and says it needs nuclear weapons to defend itself. The North has also expressed anger over tightened UN sanctions for its February nuclear test.

Analysts say the ominous warnings in recent weeks are probably efforts to provoke softer policies from South Korea, to win diplomatic talks with Washington and solidify the image of young North Korean leader Kim Jong-un.

Underneath, the text reads: "Threatening world peace with ICBMs and Nuclear weapons/Wasting money while his people starve to death."

A statement, purporting to come from the attackers Anonymous and widely circulated online, said that they had compromised 15,000 user records.

Oil spill grows from 4 to 400 barrels

The cleanup operation at the site of a freight-train derailment in northwestern Ontario has broadened.

Canadian Pacific says while it initially thought only four barrels of oil had escaped the toppled cars, it appears about 400 barrels broke free.

Some 20 cars — including two that contained light sweet crude — went off the tracks Wednesday morning near White River, about halfway between Thunder Bay and Sault Ste. Marie.

CP spokesman Ed Greenberg says crews quickly contained a leak in one of the cars but didn't realize the other had spilled until much later Wednesday.

Greenberg says the spill was initially hidden under the snow and migrated "a short distance" beneath it.

He says CP has built a berm and taken other steps to contain the leak, and all the oil will be removed during the cleanup.

"CP takes these incidents seriously," he said in a statement.

"Soil and ground water sampling around and below the site is being conducted today. There is no indication from any of the sampling sites that the product has migrated beyond the containment berms," he added.

Teams from the Transportation Safety Board and the province's Ministry of the Environment are also on site to help with the investigation and remediation.

Greenberg says train operations through the area were expected to resume Thursday evening. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Product chief departs

RBC downgrades Lululemon

RBC Capital Markets cut its rating on Lululemon Athletica Inc., and lowered its target price on the stock Thursday following the departure of the company's chief product officer.

RBC analyst Howard Tubin said Sheree Waterson was instrumental in the design process at the company for the last five years and was a strong creative leader. "While we continue to believe Ms. Waterson has a solid design team in place, the loss of her creative leadership adds a new level of uncertainty to the story," RBC said in an analysis Thursday. "We prefer to move to the sidelines with our rating until we have better visibility on future product direction."

The departure of Waterson announced by the firm late Wednesday came just weeks after Lululemon pulled its popular black Luon yoga pants from store shelves over concerns they were too sheer.

Digital archives. British Library aims to preserve Internet for researchers

Capturing the unruly, ever-changing Internet is like trying to pin down a raging river. But the British Library is going to try.

For centuries the library has kept a copy of every book, pamphlet, magazine and newspaper published in Britain. Starting Saturday, it will also be bound to record every British website, ebook, online newsletter and blog in a bid to preserve the nation's "digital memory."

As if that's not a big enough task, the library also has to make this digital archive available to future researchers — come time, tide or technological change. The library says the work is urgent. Ever since people began switching from paper and ink to computers and mobile phones, material that would fascinate future historians has been disappearing into a digital black hole.

Facebook CEO Mark Zuckerberg speaks about the new Home service for Android phones at the company's Menlo Park, Calif., headquarters on Thursday.
MARCIO JOSE SANCHEZ/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With its new Home service on Android gadgets, Facebook aims make its social network the hub of people's mobile experiences. The question, now, is whether people want all their Facebook content greeting them every time they look at their phones.

If users download Facebook's Home software starting on April 12, Facebook will become the centre of their Android smartphones. Switch on your phone and you'll see friends' photos, overlaid by status updates, links and eventually, advertisements. If a friend sends you a message, their Facebook photo will pop up as a notification.

A feature called "chat heads" lets users communicate with their friends directly from their home screens without opening a separate app.

Done with Facebook? Swipe your finger to get to a screen with your regular Android apps to listen to music, watch videos or send email.

At first, Home will only work on some Android devices, including HTC Corp.'s One X and One X Plus and Samsung Electronics Co.'s Galaxy S III and Galaxy Note 2. A phone from HTC that comes pre-loaded with Home will be available starting April 12.

SMARTPHONES, NOT SMART USERS

The List

1 No fair. Kim Jong-un is being unfairly criticized for his threats by people who just don't know the story. You see, after the Second World War, both countries laid claim to the southern territory, but the North lost a controversial game of Rock Paper Scissors. They lobbied for a "do-over," but the South asserted that the agreement was stamped "No erasies" with a "No takebacks" clause. Furthermore, South Korean President Park Geun-hye maintains that Kim's intimidation is feeble because "We are rubber and they are glue." (Note: This is NOT historically accurate. It only seems that way.)

2 Spaced out. American physics professor John Cramer released an upgraded version of his recording of the theorized Big Bang that formed the universe. Cramer explains that with no air to vibrate, space has no sound, but that the medium that pervaded the universe in the first 100,000 or so years was far more dense than the atmosphere of the Earth. All I heard was "no sound in space," thinking, "Can we send Miley Cyrus there?"

3 Sins of the father. An international team of researchers revealed a "genetic risk profile" for smokers. Ostensibly, people with a certain DNA may be predisposed to cigarette addiction. Right now, insurance companies are determining how to charge additional premiums to "elite non-smokers" based solely on their genetic makeup. Thanks guys.

4 Knocked up. Fans and media have been critical of Kim Kardashian's weight and maternity fashions. Last week, Kylie defended her step-sis, saying, "It pisses me off when people say, 'You're so fat' to Kim." Khloe stated, "OMG, I love her style," while Kourtney said, "Boo. They're jealous!" then Kendall said, "If you like it and feel good, why not?" ... and then my head exploded.

5 Smartphone. In Brazil, a woman jumped onto the subway tracks for her cellphone just as the train was arriving. The driver sounded the horn while the woman struggled to reach the platform. Two men pulled her out as the train barely missed her legs, inspiring Apple's new slogan: "iPhone5. More important than life itself."

6 Carry-on? Oh, Justin. Everyone knows you don't take your monkey to Munich without proper paperwork! Now, German authorities have given the Biebs four weeks to get him, or he'll be thrown in with the other confiscated monkeys.

7 Take a bow. Twitter exploded when Rihanna's tour bus stopped at a Walmart in Kamloops, B.C., last Sunday. Sources say the megastar entered McDonald's, bought a soft drink and made a donation to McHappy Day. She then browsed the ladies clothing section, moving gracefully, almost floating across the floor, radiating light and smelling like fresh-cut grass on a summer's day. Everyone waved as the bus pulled away, and for just one brief moment, there was peace.

8 FYI. This week in 1975, the extraordinary Minnie Riperton hit No. 1 with Loving You. Many still remember that famous high note. Four years later, Riperton succumbed to cancer, leaving husband Richard Rudolph with daughter, Maya. Yes, the same Maya Rudolph who made you laugh on SNL and in movies like Bridesmaids and Grown Ups. OK, maybe not Grown Ups.

In this city, transit is free

CITY OF TALLINN/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Estonian capital pulls a world's first

A woman is seen placing her transit pass on an electronic reader on a city bus in the Estonian capital of Tallinn. It became the world's first capital to introduce free public transport for all residents. The initiative covers buses, streetcars and trolleybuses. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Total cost

$16M

Deputy Mayor Taavi Aas says the experiment, which will cost the city some 12 million euros ($16 million) annually in lost ticket sales, has surpassed expectations. Passenger numbers are up 10 per cent, while the number of cars on city streets has fallen by as much as 15 per cent, according to Tallinn's transport authority. People move around more often, Aas said, adding, "This means they also spend more money, which boosts the economy."

Strategy actually builds city's revenue

The program is expected to boost the city's tax revenue because the registration requirement is essentially winning the city more taxable residents.

According to city calculations, some 40,000 people living and working in Tallinn are registered in other cities and towns. But more than 5,000 new Tallinn residents have been registered since Jan. 1, compared with 3,600 residency registrations during all of last year.

With 1,000 new residents equalling an estimated 1 million euros in tax revenue, the current registration rate would offset the cost. The only catch is that one must be registered as a city resident and get a two-euro transit pass. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Synopsis

It's spring! The days are getting longer, former Disney darlings are doing the Bikini Bounce on-screen in Spring Breakers and the Reel Guys have finally packed away their snow shovels and winter boots. So what better way to celebrate this time of growth and renewal than by staying indoors and watching movies? Today the Reel Guys select their favourite movies to usher in the new season.

Crime thriller Spring Breakers, a flick that sees former Disney stars go wild, is one of many movies embracing the season. HANDOUT

Films that will put a spring in your step

Reel Guys

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Weary of winter? It's (hopefully) time to put away coats and bust out bikinis as the Reel Guys celebrate the coming of warm weather

Richard: Mark, there have been some Razzie winners based around spring break, that most springy of spring traditions. The Real Cancun and From Justin to Kelly spring to mind, but there have also been some pretty good ones. No one is going to mistake Reno 911! Miami as great art, but this rude, nude and lewd movie is quite funny, especially if exploding whales make you laugh. I also like the grandma of all spring break movies, Where the Boys Are. What movies remind you of spring?

Mark: Richard, to me ALL beach movies are spring movies, the formula being heat + teenagers + hope = spring. You mention Where the Boys Are, but my vote goes to For Those Who Think Young, a 1964 confection starring James Darren as a wealthy playboy trying to romance chaste Pamela Tiffin. It also stars Paul Lynde, Bob Denver, Tina Louise and Nancy Sinatra. But most importantly, there's a lot of footage of the great forgotten Florida comic Woody Woodbury. And it features the greatest movie car ever: a '64 Buick Riviera with the roof sliced neatly in two. I can't say enough good things about this bad movie.

RC: For the adults out there I'd recommend The Four Seasons, written, directed and starring everybody's favourite MASH surgeon Alan Alda. It uses the seasons — beginning in spring — to show the stages of friendship between three middle-aged couples. If it sounds too mid-life crisis-y for you, don't forget, it's also a comedy and Carol Burnett is terrific in it.

MB: Yes, it's a very good movie, with Carol Burnett in it, but it also has Bo Derek in it, too! And if The Four Seasons is about the cycle of renewal that comes with Spring, consider the Korean film Spring, Summer, Fall, Winter ... and Spring, which trumps the Alda film by an extra Spring. This quiet, meditative film about a Buddhist monk is best enjoyed on a Sunday night with a big pot of green tea. It's very good, but it doesn't have Bo Derek in it.

RC: On the other end of the scale we have Piranha 3D, Spring Break Massacre and Banshee!!! (they added the three exclamation marks, not me!!!) all of which are cautionary spring break tales.

MB: Yes, Richard, they may all be cautionary tales about spring break, but also about having a lousy agent.

Ryan Gosling is a melting pot of masculine clichés in his latest flick. HANDOUT

Muscles, tattoos, guns and Ryan Gosling

The Place Beyond the Pines. Actor talks about playing a guy who makes nothing but bad decisions

MATT PRIGGE
Metro World News in New York

Yes, Ryan Gosling is aware of the "Hey girl" meme. When the subject is bravely broached, the already quiet actor smiles and squirms in his chair.

"Remember when Fabio was on that roller coaster and he got hit in the face by a pigeon? I kind of feel like that pigeon lately. Wrong place, wrong time."

Gosling is bit more open when talking about his new film, The Place Beyond the Pines, his second for director Derek Cianfrance. The two are on the same page.

"We were making Blue Valentine," he remembers, "and I had this cockamamie theory that I could rob a bank and get away with it. I wasn't so afraid of jail. He said that was crazy, that he had just written a movie about that. So it felt like we should make it."

In The Place Beyond the Pines, Gosling plays Luke, a face-tattooed carnival motorcycle racer who, in the opening, discovers one of his flings has resulted in a baby boy. In an effort to support him, and hopefully reunite with the mother (Eva Mendes), he becomes a bank robber. This is only the first act of the film, and his actions have repercussions throughout the shape-shifting narrative.

"It's all about consequences," Gosling explains. "It's this guy who's a melting pot of masculine clichés: muscles, tattoos, motorcycles, guns, knives. He learns those things don't make you a man at all. He's not a man, he's just surface — a superficial person without depth. In keeping with his character, he has this melodramatic, over-romanticized idea of how to turn this sinking ship around."

Not that he did too much delving into his character. "There's not much going on inside of Luke. He's a pretty surface-level person who is faced with his own lack of depth. I tried not to think too much," he says.

Reality — in ink

Derek Cianfrance and Ryan Gosling put the priority on realism, down to the tiniest detail, including Gosling's tattoos for the film. "We wanted to make the tattoos look a mess, from someone who lived a life of not thinking things through and making bad decisions," says Gosling.

Drama

Home Again

Director. Sudz Sutherland

Stars. Tatyana Ali, Lyriq Bent

Sutherland's unsettling but well-made anthology follows three deportees sent back to Jamaica after losing status. A Canadian woman is separated from her children without notice and forced to live with hostile relatives in Jamaica, a situation that soon becomes dangerous. A New Yorker soon repeats the mistakes of his past by taking work as a drug house security guard. And the third, a pampered middle class student from London, completely loses his way. Watching their downward spirals is gut-wrenching.

From Holy Motors to hooligans

Eva Mendes. Actress says she feels like she's been prepping for her latest role her "whole life"

MATT PRIGGE
Metro World News in New York

The Place Beyond the Pines opens next Friday. HANDOUT

The last time Eva Mendes was seen on screens was in Holy Motors, in which she played a model kidnapped by a belligerent underground man-beast with a curved goatee. She had no lines and barely broke her icy model facade. It was a kind of commentary, if perhaps accidental, on the career of Mendes, a beautiful woman and, earlier last decade, an It Girl — a designation that tends to stick for three or so years before being unceremoniously taken away.

"I'm an actress," Mendes insists, with a relaxed smile. "I'm certainly not a glamazon. I turn it on when I have to, if I have to wear something on the red carpet to sell a movie. That's not where the art lies."

Mendes has done her fair share of questionable Hollywood product (2 Fast 2 Furious, Hitch, Ghost Rider). But she's always made room for more challenging fare, such as We Own the Night, Bad Lieutenant: Port of Call New Orleans and Training Day, in which she played Denzel Washington's mistress. "I was as raw as you could be in that movie," she recalls.

"That's what I gravitate towards. When you do the bigger Hollywood films they like you a little more cleaned up."

She's now in The Place Beyond the Pines, a three-part megadrama in which she plays a small town waitress who sired a baby with a carnival motorcycle racer played by her real-life boyfriend Ryan Gosling.

"I feel like I've been prepping for this role my whole life, whether I realized it or not," she says.

The film spans 15 years, requiring her to don some light aging makeup.

"I didn't think of it as aging. I thought of it as a pain manifesting its way through time," she says. She still had tricks to make her look — and act — older.

"I had garments I would wear under my clothes to make me feel a certain way." She even shaved her eyebrows down a very thin line — in the middle of the night, without telling her director, Derek Cianfrance.

"These were things that would suggest this is a woman who abandoned herself. That's where I went with it."

Documentary

The Gatekeepers

Stars. Ami Ayalon, Avi Dichter

Director. Dror Moreh

The Gatekeepers examines 45 years of fruitless peacemaking in the Israeli-Palestinian conflict from those directly responsible for its security, the heads of secret agency Shin Bet. The Oscar foreign-language nominee certainly creates a chilling atmosphere with its secret footage and seemingly futile outlook, but ultimately that disparate account leads to what may be missing in most of the movies we see that deal with the subject from a victim's perspective.

STEVE GOW/METRO

Horror

Evil Dead

Director. Fede Alvarez

Stars. Jane Levy, Shiloh Fernandez

Sam Raimi's original 1982 shocker The Evil Dead was a wall-to-wall, DIY splatter landmark whose zany camera angles and impossible gore made it the Looney Tunes of horror flicks. The Raimi produced, Fede Alvarez directed remake however forgoes most of the manic energy of the first picture (and its sequels) in favour of atmospheric chills, baroque elegance and an absolutely jaw-dropping onslaught of vicious, stomach churning carnage. The set-up is the same: a bunch of kids go to a cabin in the woods, read from a demonic book, get possessed and hack each other into butcher spoils. But a wild final act pushes the film into histrionic horror art.

Spring is here, so it's time for some fresh new tunes that can compliment the weather

Escapism/ WVM

If you're at all into the same headspace as Trent Reznor of Nine Inch Nails, have a listen to this kid from L.A. He even has some NIN buddies performing with him.

Paper Girl/ July Talk

People who saw this young Canadian band at Canadian Music Week are still raving about them.

Full Circle/ Half Moon Run

Out of Montreal, think of them as Radiohead meets Mumford & Sons. Very cool.

Thicke blurring the lines with latest album

Online videos. With his wife's blessing, Robin Thicke pushes the boundaries by releasing an unrated and kid-friendly version of first single

Robin Thicke didn't plan on releasing the unrated version of his music video for the song Blurred Lines, which features nude models prowling around him and rappers Pharrell and T.I. Then his friends and actress-wife Paula Patton weighed in.

"When I first got both videos, I liked them both, but I thought the first one is so good maybe we'll just release that and not release the second one. And then I started playing it for my friends and my lady, and everybody just thought it was great," he said. "It's entertainment."

Thicke's unrated video hit the Web on Tuesday and so far it has more than one million views on YouTube. The original kid- and teen-friendly version debuted last week and has close to 800,000 views.

Thicke said his wife was OK with the models on the set and he sought her approval: "Obviously if she didn't like it, I wouldn't put it out."

Blurred Lines will appear on Thicke's sixth album, due out this summer.

School's out for Bieber: Exams postponed for pop concerts

Officials at five Norwegian schools have reportedly rescheduled their midterm exams so as not to coincide with a pair of Justin Bieber concerts later this month, according to Fox News. The school officials were apparently concerned that holding the exams in conflict with the April 16 and 17 concerts would lead to students skipping the tests in favour of seeing Bieber. The singer himself apparently approves, tweeting a link to the news with the comment, "Love this."

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Are Will and Jada getting jiggy with it?

THE WORD
Dorothy Robinson
scene@metronews.ca

Do Will and Jada Smith have an open marriage? If you read between the lines in a recent interview with the star with Huffington Post Live, it certainly seems like it.

"I've always told Will, 'You can do whatever you want as long as you can look at yourself in the mirror and be OK,'" she said. "Because at the end of the day, Will is his own man. I'm here as his partner, but he is his own man. He has to decide who he wants to be and that's not for me to do for him. Or vice versa."

Amanda Bynes

It's her birthday and she'll act weird if she wants to

Amanda Bynes celebrated her 27th birthday in New York earlier this week by exhibiting some "bizarre" behaviour, eyewitnesses tell E! News. Bynes was browsing for pipes in a market in flip-flops, sweatpants and a loose wig over her long hair. "She had this shoulder-length mousy wig and then all the hair was hanging out underneath. It was bizarre. She looked homeless," the eyewitness says, adding that Bynes raised more eyebrows upon leaving the store: "She was crossing into traffic, wasn't waiting for any of the lights to change, and a cab almost hit her twice." For those keeping track, Bynes has been spotted with fading red dye in her hair, even though she previously claimed that shots of her with red hair were of an imposter.

Dig in! Feast of Thrones

Liquid Assets

Noble booze

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy
liquidassets@eastlink.ca

Since I'm the guy who's still working his way through the first season of Mad Men, I've been slow getting into Game of Thrones. That said, Thrones' plot line may have me forsaking Don Draper in favour of Tyrion Lannister.

I'm on board with any show that could possibly involve a feast or two. After all, where there's a chance of wild beast being served there's bound to be booze.

It's no cliché that white meats generally call for whites wines. Their texture and subtle flavours can get steamrolled by many reds, but not all. Chicken, especially one coated with a fruit or honey glaze, is a perfect match for the bright berry flavours that ooze from the pinot noir grape.

Thrones' tales of infighting and epic battles remind me of France, pinot's original home that's no stranger to clashes of historic proportions.

The 2011 Baron Philippe de Rothschild Pinot Noir Vin de Pays d'Oc ($11.95 to $13.99) from southern France has a soft, mushroom-meets-strawberry aroma and more than enough mouth appeal to match with honeyed chicken and fantasy world conniving. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

Food. HBO's Game of Thrones returned for Season 3 last week and what better way to celebrate than host a medieval-themed dinner party based on the epic fantasy novels and TV series?

ROMINA MCGUINNESS
Metro World News in London

A Feast of Ice and Fire, the official Game of Thrones cookbook, recreates some of the mouth-watering recipes featured in the novels, including Dothraki Blood Pie and Hen on the Wall.

Co-author and Chef Chelsea Monroe-Cassel talks us through how to throw a premiere party, Westeros style.

Setting the scene: Rich, romantic and grandiose

We don't all live in castles, so it can be tough to transform a regular apartment into something that looks the part. One thing you can do is to set up some kind of entrance. Try to find a brocade or velvet throw from a thrift store.

Split it down the middle and tie it to either side of a door using gold cord to make a grander entryway. Illuminate the room by lighting candles everywhere.

I'd avoid using scents that are too overpowering, such as rose or patchouli, as the heavy smell could clash with the flavours of the food. Simple beeswax is best.

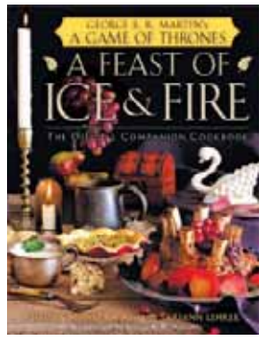

Table etiquette: Finger licking is OK

There's something awesome about being dressed up in a cloak and sat around a table eating chicken with your fingers by candlelight. Most of your guests will be hardcore fans, and think it's awesome. But others may be a little more reluctant. So if you take away their forks, leaving just knives and napkins, they'll have to play along like everyone else. Put in the extra effort to find medieval looking dishes and silverware, anything made from wood or pewter works.

The feast: Dig in

People think medieval food is gross, but recipes that sound weird are delicious once made. ... Seeing an opulent spread of food is really satisfying. So once everything is ready, lay it all out on the table at once. The only course that should be saved for later is the dessert. Serve it once your guests have settled down to watch the show in the lounge. Lastly, don't forget to quench your guests' thirst. Make sure you have plenty of red wine and apple cider to get you through the night.

Appetizer. Very simple but tasty Dornish fare

"We haven't gotten to this in the show yet, but the Dornish have some of the best finger food."

Ingredients

- Hummus
- Purple Olives
- Pita bread
- Feta Cheese

1. Place the hummus, olives, pita bread and feta cheese on a platter and serve.

Dinner. Honeyed Chicken

"This is essentially just a roast chicken with a good sauce, but it's great because it's straight out of the halls of Winterfell. Plus, if you deny your guests silverware, they have to tear into it with their bare hands."

1. Rub chicken down with olive oil and salt. Heat oven at 450 F and leave to roast for approximately one hour.

2. In meantime, combine all ingredients for sauce in pan and leave to simmer until the raisins look plump and the mixture thickens. Remove from the heat and when the chicken is done, coat it with honey sauce.

Ingredients

- 1 whole chicken for roasting
- Olive oil
- Salt

Sauce:

- 1/2 cup apple cider vinegar
- 1/3 cup honey
- 1 tsp fresh mint
- Small handful of raisins
- 1/2 tbsp butter

Rangers agree to deal with all-star shortstop Andrus

Elvis Andrus is staying in Texas because he wants to win a World Series with the team that brought him to the major leagues. Scott Boras, the agent who loves to have his clients test free agency, is fine with that.

The Rangers on Thursday announced a new contract that could keep the two-time all-star shortstop in Texas for another decade. Andrus is guaranteed $120 million over an additional eight seasons through 2022, with a vesting option for 2023.

Hockey. Sophomores will need to step up in wake of injuries to team veterans

The most recent additions to the Canadian women's hockey team have already had their trial by fire.

Forward Bailey Bram and defencemen Courtney Birchard, Laura Fortino and Lauriane Rougeau experienced the highest high and the lowest low in their first women's world hockey championship last year in Burlington, Vt.

The Canadians opened that tournament with a shocking 9-2 loss to the host U.S., but beat the Americans 5-4 in overtime in the final for Canada's first world championship gold since 2007.

"In the first game, when it was 5-0, I hadn't even stepped on the ice yet," Bram recalls. "I was so nervous. It was my first game ever with the big team."

Games against the American women in world championships and Olympic Games are the stiffest test of a Canadian player.

They may be trailing their teammates in that type of experience, but Canada's four newcomers feel they've learned enough in the few times they've faced the U.S.

"There's a lot of lessons," Rougeau says. "Keep calm during the game because sometimes as a young rookie on the team, you can get nervous with the puck and you can see the Americans coming with great speed.

"You can have confidence on the ice and you have more time than you think, so you just can't panic."

Rougeau, of Beaconsfield, Que., and Hamilton's Fortino are defensive partners and in their senior year at Cornell University. Birchard, of Mississauga, Ont., and Bram of Ste. Anne, Man., play for the CWHL's Brampton Thunder.

They represent a big chunk of Canada's roster at this year's world championship and possibly of Canada's 2014 Olympic team too.

Injuries

Canada concludes the preliminary round Friday against Finland in a game that will decide first place in Pool A.

- Captain Hayley Wickenheiser and assistant captain Caroline Ouellette sat out Wednesday's 13-0 win over Switzerland with upper-body injuries.
- Canadian head coach Dan Church sounded more optimistic about Ouellette re-joining the team for Friday's game than Wickenheiser.

Curling. Denmark takes out Canada in ninth end

Denmark's Rasmus Stjerne downed Canada's Brad Jacobs 7-3 at the world men's curling championships Thursday.

Canada dropped to 7-3 while the Danes finished the round-robin segment at 7-4. Jacobs' Northern Ontario rink was due to conclude the round-robin segment against Sweden later Thursday.

Stjerne secured the win as he made a great hit-and-roll shot in the ninth end.

The one-two Page playoff game and any necessary tie-breakers will be held Friday. The loser of the opening playoff game between the first and second-place teams will get another crack at the final against the winner of the three-four game Saturday.

Injured forward Kevin Ware takes questions on Wednesday in Louisville, Ky. TIMOTHY D. EASLEY/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Louisville has big hole to fill in Ware

Final Four. Wounded guard integral to Cardinals' high-octane, high-pressure defence

His full-leg cast and crutches aside, Kevin Ware is no different than the rest of his Louisville teammates this week. He's at team meetings. He's going to practice. He's riding the bus. He even put on his jersey to pose for the stock images that will be used during the Final Four telecast.

"He's doing everything he would normally do," Peyton Siva said.

Except playing.

Ware's presence at the Final Four is an emotional boost for the Cardinals, coming just days after he broke his lower right leg in gruesome fashion. But his absence on the floor leaves the top-seeded Cardinals vulnerable for the first time in the NCAA tournament.

"It's going to take a great effort without Kevin to win this thing. We know that," Louisville coach Rick Pitino said Thursday. "I would have said we probably were offensively and defensively one of the better teams in the country. Now I think we've got some problems that we've got to overcome. If we can do that, we can win. But we've got some problems."

The Cardinals (33-5) play Wichita State (30-8) on Saturday night.

Ware started only one game this year for Louisville. He averaged fewer than six points in the NCAA tournament, and had a total of five assists and four steals in the first four games.

But he's been invaluable for the Cardinals, giving Pitino a much-needed backup for Siva and Russ Smith, the high-octane guards at the heart of Louisville's suffocating defence. The Cardinals don't know the meaning of the words "personal space," putting pressure on anyone who's got the ball. It's exhausting to watch, let alone play, and Pitino has made liberal use of his bench to keep everybody fresh.

Ware averaged 20 minutes in the first three games, above his 16.2 during the season.

Take away Ware, however, and Pitino's options are limited. Mike Marra missed the whole season after getting hurt in September. Luke Hancock can play guard, but the junior has been outstanding as a backup forward and Pitino might not want to mess with that. Wayne Blackshear could be moved over, too, at least on defence, but he's one of Louisville's starting forwards. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
You have never been afraid to fight for your rights but you need to remember that others have rights as well. You could force your wishes on others today but it's really not worth the bad feeling.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
If you are the focus of gossip, the best way to deal with it is to laugh it off. It seems someone is stirring up trouble and hoping you will react. Now that you know, act cool.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
You may not like it when others make decisions for you but the planets indicate you will have to grin and bear it today. Sometimes you have no choice but to follow orders. But you'll get your revenge.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
Your rivals are not nearly as powerful or influential as they think they are. Your best defense when confronted by anger or animosity is to just ignore them. Imagine they don't exist — and for you they won't.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
There is something you know you must do, something you should probably have done weeks ago. Stop just thinking about it and do something concrete. Take the first step and the rest will come easy.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
You can't resist giving advice —it's part of your nature — but don't be surprised if what you say today is outright rejected by a friend. You're allowed to give advice but they don't have to take it.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
There will be situations over which you have no control and you need to accept that. Don't waste your time and energy trying to change what cannot be changed. Relax — it's life.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Don't be too eager to get rid of one thing so you can have another, because it may not be as simple as that. If you are thinking of making changes, try waiting a few days. They may be unnecessary.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
You may be inclined, in true Sagittarian fashion, to throw everything at a problem in the hope that one huge effort will solve it. Maybe it will, but more likely you will exhaust yourself. Is it really worth the effort?

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
You seem to believe that the world is against you, that negative forces are plotting to bring you down. You've been reading too many conspiracy theories. The world is not against you, it loves you.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Is it possible to affect the outcome of a situation by thinking strong and positive thoughts about it? Yes, it is. And if you give it a go over the next few days you will be amazed by the results.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
It will be easy to lose your temper with someone today but is it worth the effort? No, it's not. The best way to deal with those who annoy you is to pretend they don't exist.
